

Did You Know
By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT Circleville was 'minstrel conscious' in the 1860's and 1870's and the black-face shows were frequently presented in the city. Talent seemed to be plentiful and the large crowds which turned out to greet the performances apparently was ample evidence of the shows' worth.

In February, 1872, when a group of young men had produced a show and believed it 'the best yet,' it was decided to give the citizens of Chillicothe a treat.

Accompanied by a brass band and plenty of other forms of ballyhoo, the minstrel company left the city on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 18, and that evening presented the show to a large crowd in the opera house at the Ross-co seat.

John P. Burns, the distinguished editor of The Scioto Valley Post, and dramatic critic of the same newspaper, apparently was displeased with the whole show, including the brass band, for he brought forth a review of the minstrel, which was not highly pleasing to the editor of The Circleville Herald and Union, and not even to his fellow townsman, the editor of The Scioto Gazette.

Here is how Mr. Burns reviewed the entire proceedings: "A mob of about 20 ballyhoo and distinguished gentlemen from Circleville... who had evidently seen better days, arrived in our city Tuesday and preceding a cornet band, paraded the streets. It was an affecting spectacle, forcibly reminding one of the days of our country's peril when recruiting officers were drumming up volunteers for the hundred days' men."

"In the middle of the procession was a young colored man, named Rife, whom we understood to be the Circleville Herald and Union, when not professionally engaged. They reported a season of scarcity and suffering in Circleville and had come here to procure a little assistance through means of minstrel entertainment."

"So Chillicothe evidenced her liberality to suffering humanity. The boys gave their show in the evening and sympathetic citizens advanced their change and a goodly sum was raised. Some cold victuals, old but good, clothes and divers free lunches were also taken care of by the unfortunate strangers. They left for home Wednesday."

E. Z. Hays, editor of The Herald, labeled the review "a highly interesting and soothing nursery rhyme," while Mr. Burns' fellow townsman, the editor of The Scioto Gazette, had the following to say: "I advise Burns to take one bucketful of vermicife every three minutes for 24 hours. Vermicife is the only sure remedy known to the medical fraternity for worms."

THAT the Pickaway-co jail had a 'King Kong' behind its bars in February, 1872, if reports published in The Herald of the time, concerning the strength of a certain inmate, are true. The newspaper is quoted as follows:

"Kister, the horse thief, after his attempt to break jail last week, had manacles placed upon his hands by the jailer. He, however, soon freed himself and presented them to the jailer with the jocular remark that he had no use for them. His feet were then chained together, but he took off the chains and gave them back to the jailer. He was then chained to the floor... and stayed there."

That 60 years ago some Circleville wives blamed the dispensers of intoxicating liquors for the results of their husbands' actions, after partaking of the 'spirits.' Here is how one wife settled the matter with a saloon keeper, as recorded in the newspaper of the time: "In a neighboring village lately a drunken husband went home and amused himself by breaking furniture, etc. His wife looked on, and when (Continued on Page Three)

SEVEN GAIN FREEDOM
National Guards Called To Hunt Bad Men.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Jan. 20.—Louis Sam Dresser, Kansas school teacher who was kidnapped yesterday by two of seven convicts escaped from the Kansas State penitentiary at Lansing, was released early today near Barnsdall, Okla.

Dresser identified his abductors as Bob (Big Boy) Brady and Jim Clark, leaders in the break. Both men are desperate criminals, serving life sentences under the habitual criminal act.

Brady and Clark, with Dresser their captive, had made their flight from near Wallula, Kans., south of Lansing, to near Barnsdall in Dresser's coupe.

AUTO RETURNED
Dresser said he was released when Brady and Clark found an owner, which they stole.

They returned Dresser's car to him and told him to "beat it."

Posses were hastily organized and an intensive search was started. The fugitives had received a good start in the chase, however, and the officers were unable to pick up the trail immediately.

In making their flight from Kansas, Brady and Clark had dodged scores of officers standing guard along the Oklahoma-Kansas line.

LANSING, Kans., Jan. 20.—Seven convicts, who scaled the south wall of the Kansas State penitentiary, today had completely eluded several hundred officers who relentlessly searched through three states in vain.

The search for the desperadoes was being carried on by National guardsmen, agents of the department of justice and Kansas state officers on foot and aloft in airplanes.

Besides Brady and Clark, those who escaped the prison were Fred Cody, Frank Delmar, Tommy McMahon, Benjamin Young and Charley Clifton McArthur.

Mayor W. B. Cady was on record, Saturday, with his first warning to violators of the law. It concerns 'chasing' the fire engine on calls to various parts of the city.

"People crowding their cars around fire hydrants, between the truck and the fire, and driving their automobiles within 300 feet of the truck are going to be brought in here and they won't enjoy the visit," the Mayor declared while seated in his office Saturday morning.

"I'm tired of seeing firemen forced to fight their way to the hydrants, and drive their truck around parked automobiles to reach a fire scene," he cited the fact that a number of times automobile drivers have reached the fire before the department, especially in uptown automobile fires, and the fire-fighters were unable to even reach the burning automobile.

ORDINANCE RECALLED
There is a city ordinance, carrying a fine as penalty, for parking within 300 feet of the truck. There is also an ordinance against parking too close to fire hydrants.

Mayor Cady also took to task what he called "curbing fire-fighters," persons who stand watching a fire and criticize firemen who are doing their duty to reduce damage a fire might cause. There are only two firemen on duty on each shift, the mayor pointed out, and unless they are

PARIS, Jan. 20.—The pilot and radio operator of a mail plane bound from Marseilles to Paris were killed today when the craft crashed in flames near Caromb.

Definite plans were made, Friday evening for a mammoth "Roosevelt Ball" to be held here on Tuesday evening, Jan. 30. Proceeds from the event will go into an endowment fund for the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis. More than 5,000 such celebrations will be held throughout the nation.

Two dances will be conducted during the evening. Efforts are being made to obtain the Circleville Athletic Club for modern dancing and Memorial Hall for old-time dancing. A card party will also be in progress at the latter hall.

The general committee, named by Chairman Walter Marion and Vice Chairman Frank Lynch, decided to charge 75 cents per person, the ticket to be good for dancing at neither or both halls, and card playing. A purchaser may spend as much time as he desires in either of the halls.

NICKERSON GETS TASK
Glenn I. Nickerson is chairman of the ticket committee. Tickets are expected to be put in the hands of other members of the committee Monday at which time the drive will be started. Mr. Nickerson pointed out that the Ball is not only for Circleville but for the entire county, and tickets

WATCH FOR DETAILS
Many additional details concerning the Ball will be announced from now until the night of the national party. Mr. Marion was in Columbus today seeking additional window posters which were drawn by the pen of Howard Chandler Christy, famous artist. As soon as they are obtained they will be available at The Herald office for distribution by Boy Scouts.

High school officials will be asked to permit the school band to parade the streets of the city on Saturday, Jan. 27, to add color to the approaching party.

Ninety-six patronesses have been appointed for the big Ball and more are to be named in the county's villages and rural districts. Mrs. Glenn I. Nickerson and Mrs. Frank Lynch are in charge of this committee.

The general committee will meet again next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock to make reports on progress.

Two youths sentenced to the Ohio reformatory by Judge J. W. Adkins for armed robbery of the S. Court-st Kroger store in 1931 have escaped the Mansfield institution, the sheriff's office has been informed.

They are Lonnie Hall, 22, and Royce Fields, 23, both of Portsmouth.

The bulletin received by the sheriff declared the pair had escaped on January 15. How they gained their freedom was not disclosed.

Each of the youths was serving a 10 to 25 year term. They were also identified as having robbed the Williamsport Kroger store.

They were received at the reformatory on Feb. 26, 1931.

Two others sentenced from Pickaway-co counts for various crimes have escaped the Mansfield prison in the last month. They include Kenneth Kneese, Jackson, twp., who was captured and returned, and Lewis "Whit" Neff, Millport, who has not yet been apprehended.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 20.—Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul bank president, kidnapped for $200,000 ransom was killed accidentally by one of the gang abductors, according to an anonymous letter received today by W. C. Robertson, postmaster of Minneapolis.

The letter to Robertson also declared that Bremer's body has been buried in the snow near Anoka, Minn., about twenty miles northwest of St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Jan. 20.—Edward G. Bremer, kidnapped president of the Commercial State bank, today was still being held by an abduction gang who four days ago demanded payment of $200,000 ransom if his life was to be spared.

Optimism gave way to fearful anxiety for the wealthy young banker's safety as his family, one of the wealthiest and most influential in St. Paul, maintained a ceaseless vigil.

Following out instructions given by the kidnappers, Adolph Bremer, prominent Democratic leader and father of the missing man, has provided the staggering ransom payment in used bills. Yet no word, apparently, had come from the abductors.

Bloodstains found in the missing man's abandoned automobile heightened the anxiety of Bremer's family, although his colleagues failed to show alarm at the discovery.

"Ed is quick tempered," said H. M. Kalscheur, vice president of the bank. "He probably struck at the kidnappers. The stains might have come from a bloody nose."

FARLEY IS DIFFERENT
The case of Democratic National committee chairman and Postmaster General James Farley was different. Quite frankly, it was known that legislation which in effect would compel Farley to give up one of his positions would be acceptable to the powers that be. As a matter of fact, Farley himself has made it known he would like to rid himself of the burdensome duties of committee chairman.

The candidate is a dirt farmer and a graduate of Ohio State university. For a number of years he has been a leading exhibitor of jersey cattle at the Ohio State fair.

He was placed on parole on condition that he pay the doctor's bill for injuries Mr. Butler suffered.

SUCCESSOR SOUGHT
TO 'JIM' FARLEY

Postmaster - General Farley, who informed President Roosevelt, Friday, that he would like to step from under his duties as Democratic National chairman. He will retain the post until a suitable successor has been chosen, and right now that seems to be a long way in the future.

The telephone call was received last Friday, according to Mrs. Kundts.

"It was a man's voice," she said. "He told me I had better try to persuade Mr. Kundts to resign or I would be sorry. He said 'the children may go to school some day and not return.'"

Mr. Kundts said she delayed in disclosing the threatening telephone call to her husband "because he had enough on his mind."

A hearing has just been concluded before the city civil service commission, airing charges filed against Chief Kundts by City Safety Director C. C. Williams in connection with a $350 check he received from Ralph H. Nowe.

In revealing the mysterious telephone call, Mrs. Kundts disclosed also that an attempt was made several months ago to lure one of her children from her classes at West High school. At that time, a man telephoned the school and asked that the girl be sent home as her mother was ill.

A school official checked the call and learned that Mrs. Kundts was not ill and had not requested that her daughter be sent home.

Head liners on the program are an address by John McSweeney, director of the Ohio Welfare department and an address by F. G. Kotner, who has been called the father of cooperative livestock marketing in Ohio, and musical entertainment by Miss Lena Metzger of the Ohio State university.

The meeting is called to begin at 10 a. m. and will continue throughout the day until 3:30 in the afternoon.

Ladies of the Methodist church will serve lunch during the noon hour.

Substantial dividend checks will be distributed at the close of the meeting.

The annual stockholders meeting of the Pickaway Grain company was held Friday afternoon, at the Farm Bureau home.

Election of directors resulted in the re-election of J. B. Stevenson of Wayne-twp and R. D. Head of Pickaway-twp, whose terms expired.

B. A. Wallace, Extension Specialist of the Ohio State university, addressed the group.

Tigers Trail Bexley 5; Grandview Defeated

Circleville Tigers were unable to shake the lead from their feet in the first half Friday evening so they lost another basketball game in the Central Buckeye league and Bexley was the winner. The score was 19-12 with the game being played on the Bexley court.

The Red and Black put up a miserable performance in the first half scoring one field goal in each period. The score at the half was 11-4.

The locals played the Bexleyites even in the second half but that margin was too large to overcome. A sharp-shooting guard named Magnuson, of whom the Tigers had been warned before hand, did the work that brought the Tiger downfall. He counted four goals from the floor in the first half and another in the final session to lead all the scorers.

OFFENSE TIED UP

The Tiger offense was tied up during the entire contest and never did get going with any degree of accuracy.

The local squad has now lost four consecutive Central Buckeye league contests, Marysville winning the first one, 25-22; Westerville the second, 29-22; Delaware the third, 24-17, and now Bexley the fourth, 19-12.

Delaware bumped Grandview out of its first place perch by defeating the Bobcats by a 24-21 margin in a splendid game. Westerville returned to the victory column whipping Marysville, 35-19, and as a result Bexley, Delaware and Westerville are tied for first place in the league.

Circleville continues to occupy the cellar with Marysville just a game ahead.

The first half of the league season comes to an end here next Friday when Grandview team invades the C. A. C. court.

UPSETS FOUND IN PICKAWAY'S COURT SCORES

Scioto Girls Turn Back Hitherto Undefeated Darby Team, 16 To 12.

PICKAWAY IS VICTOR

Ashville Scores 49 Points On Monroe Squad.

Defeat of New Holland by Pickaway-two boys, removal of Darby from the undefeated class by Scioto, the defeat of Walnut boys by Deercreek's youths, and the terrific pace the Ashville boys are continuing to set featured Friday's county contests.

Pickaway, down-trodden through the greater part of the year, went to New Holland to cop a hard-fought 25-22 victory. The New Holland girls, with Ater in the leading role, defeated Pickaway girls, 13-11, in an overtime period.

The contest between Darby and Scioto girls at Commercial Point was a splendid one with the latter team winning by a 16-12 score. The Darby boys snatched victory from the Scioto squad, however, by a 29-10 tally.

Deercreek, led by Bob Carper, outdistanced the Walnut-two boys in a fast 26-19 struggle on the Williamsport court. Walnut girls had their easiest time of the year winning 47-9 from the Williamsport sextet.

Ashville again neared the half-century mark when it whipped Monroe-two boys, 49-10, at Ashville. It seems that this outfit coached by Al Kauber is seeking an all-time scoring record for the county. It has scored over 40 points in each game played in the county. The high mark was reached against Perry when 51 was the score.

Ashville girls, figured to lose to Monroe with Miss Hiles, center and captain on the sidelines with injuries, won by an impressive 21-9 score. The Ashville defense reached its greatest heights of the year.

Muhlenberg and Perry engaged in thrilling duels at Darbyville with Muhlenberg girls winning, 20-15, and Perry boys, 25-23. Saltcreek boys ran true to form to defeat the Jackson-two youths by a 32-21 tally on the Fox P. O. court. The Jackson girls were victorious, however, coping by a 22-9 score.

CONFERENCE FIVES IN GAMES TONIGHT

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Six Western conference basketball teams resume the championship race tonight, the feature game on the program being the Northwestern-Illinois contest at Champaign, in which the former team will be fighting for second place.

Michigan engages the University of Chicago five, for the second time this season, here at the midway Ohio State, co-champions last year, will meet Minnesota at Minneapolis. Michigan defeated the Maroons, 34 to 18, earlier in the season.

Victory for the Northwestern team, which has been gathering scoring momentum steadily, will give the Wildcats undisputed second place with four victories and one defeat. Iowa, now tied for second with Northwestern, is idle.

An Illinois victory, not entirely unexpected, will place the Illini and their opponents of the evening in a deadlock for third position in the conference standings.

BLOOD FOUND,

Federal department of justice agents and a small army of police were holding their forces in check, meanwhile, in deference to the elder Bremer's request, that no move be made that might jeopardize the missing man's life.

ONE WITNESS FOUND

One, and only one, witness to the actual kidnaping has been found. He is James Quinehan, driver of a milk wagon, who has been by the Summit grade school when the kidnapers were transferring their victim from his private automobile to their own. Bremer had just deposited his 8 year old daughter Betty, at the school doors and was driving away to his office.

From Quinehan's story federal operatives hoped to glean some clue that would shed light on the identity of the kidnapers. Quinehan, however, insisted that he did not see the men closely enough to identify them.

"I saw two automobiles a block away," the eye-witness explained. "The Bremer automobile had stopped at Lexington-ave (an arterial highway) when a large sedan swung in front of it. That was between 8:20 and 8:30 in the morning."

"I thought it was an accident. Then I saw the other car moving away and the Bremer automobile was trailing behind it. At the time I didn't know it was a kidnaping, at all."

Miss Bremer disclosed that as yet no direct contact had been made with the abductors. Two communications were received shortly after Bremer was kidnaped, one by telephone and the other in a crudely typewritten note demanding $200,000 in used bills.

Both messages carried a threat that Bremer would be slain unless the ransom demands were met and information be withheld from police.

Department of justice agents, including Frank J. Blake, ace investigator of the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping at Oklahoma City, were working secretly on the investigation until they are assured of Bremer's safety.

Blake and others in charge of the government phase of the hunt refused to say how many depart-

Frostbite Is a Common Cold Weather Complaint

It Can Develop Into a Serious Condition, Dr. Copeland, Urging Precautions

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

UNDUE EXPOSURE to cold leads to a common and sometimes extremely serious condition known as "frostbite." I do not refer to that ailment called "chilblains." The chilblains attacks children and poorly nourished persons exposed to cold. This is more of a chronic condition in which the skin is discolored and painful.

Prolonged exposure to cold causes the skin to become bright red or livid in color, and may be followed by blistering. In the more severe form of frostbite the involved skin is pale, stiff and brittle. Extremely cold air constricts the blood vessels and may completely shut off the blood supply. In that event, gangrene or death of the frost-bitten tissue results.

Methods of Treatment

When the entire body is exposed to extreme cold the victim becomes benumbed. Movement of the body is difficult and there may set in a marked drowsiness. The eyesight fails, then walking becomes impossible and the sufferer may fall unconscious.

When the skin is only slightly frost-bitten it should be gently rubbed and cloths wrung out of cold water should be applied to it. Snow may be rubbed on the affected part, but cold cloths are better.

PERSONAL —to a lady

THIS evening when your husband comes home, what would he think if you greeted him in the wedding dress you wore a good many years ago? One thing sure, he's silently wonder how you could have seemed so lovely then in an outfit that looks so old-fashioned now.

We wonder if your husband realizes there has been as much change in furniture as in wedding dresses? (Remember what you told him the other day, "Most of the furniture in this house was bought right after we were married.")

There is no better time than now to greet him in that wedding dress — and then show him the furniture advertisements in the newspaper! Today you can read about and see pre-views of the furniture shows that will be held next month, so close at hand. And it will probably surprise you to learn he is as interested as you are. Men don't like to go through the stores to shop. But it's quite easy to get them to read over the advertisements in the quiet of your home.

Wouldn't today be a good time to get him to say "yes" about that new furniture you've been wanting?

Bowling News

The Washington C. H. 'Klevers,' a bowling team comprised of five women, put up a good game Friday evening but lost to the Baker Ramblers by a 340 pin margin. The winning team rolled up a 926 score in the last game with four of the bowlers hitting high scores.

The first game ended 863-742 in favor of the Bakers, the second 923 to 762, and the third, 926 to 778.

Individual scores were:

Bakers: Herdman, 536; Bartholomew, 526; Maloney, 477; DeLong, 550; Baker, 504.

Klevers: Snyder, 375; Jones, 465; Williams, 488; Boswell, 433; Williams, 520.

His Own Problems

THE case of Edward Dwyer, of Weymouth,
Mass., is a dairy farmer who stands out as a conspicuous example of what initiative and intelligence and close application to work can do in the achievement of success.

His case came to public attention
one day when the Massachusetts department of agriculture honored him for his "credit-worthy accomplishments in dairying."

One day when all branches of the dairy industry are crying for aid and the department is supplying this in large quantities, and when under some agricultural sections
the form of mob violence,
the case of the Massachusetts
dairyman is deserving of more ordinary attention. Mr.

He started with one cow, and horses, seven horses and 300

head of calves. His success was not easily achieved. For several years he worked seven days a week from 4 a. m.
to 10 p. m. His sow had a family, and Dwyer sold and, with the money, bought a cow. With the milk he started a small delivery among his neighbors.

From his father he borrowed money and enlarged his business. Meanwhile graduating from the local county agricultural school.

He probably still has his problem in reaching his present level of success he demonstrated ability for dealing with a very difficult situation that must give him a feeling of confidence in himself.

own.
The burning of certain records,
described by a witness, is only one of these. At least two air mail companies, other witnesses testified, suffered heavy losses — one and the other out of the dollar

The postmaster general's stipula-

It is fairness to the former post-

opportunity should be given him.
His testimony is needed if many of the apparently strange things
that occurred under his adminis-

He did not even turn his head to look at her. The commanding power
of his eyes drew to a focus that
centered upon Ned Wingate.
"Get out!"

Wingate twisted his head with a
bird-like motion as though he had not heard a word. "How's that?"
"Get out. I want to talk to Miss Luneska alone."

Wingate's long lips gave a twitch
of embarrassment. He was a vain
man and would have found it much easier if Gerstenfeld had troubled
to be just a little polite. As it was,
he tried to pass it off as a bit of a joke.

"Right! But if she talks you
into doubling the salary, I'd fol-

His effort at lightness thudded to the floor. With a howl to Leni and
a smile which meant to be humor-

"Just happened to think," he
said. "Hadn't I better see our press

"Nothing of the kind," Gersten-
feld tossed negligently, over his

As soon as Leni was alone in

He took a step forward. Even before he spoke, the dull lights in his eyes began to glow.

"Now we're alone," he said cool-
ly. "We'll cut out the foolishness."
"I'm sorry—there's really nothing
for us to talk about, Mr. Gersten-feld. Whatever has happened is my own private affair. It does not concern the studio in the least."

Nevertheless, something was disconcerting her. A mental flow from Gerstenfeld kept pressing in on Leni's senses.
"Why do you think I stayed here
to talk to you?"

"I don't know," said Leni frankly.
"It's not on account of your contract—I don't give a rap about that."
"What then?"

Herman Gerstenfeld took a step closer. There was nothing about him of charm or good looks. An inconspicuous man with a tired face and dry, neglected hair on an ordinary head. A man to pass unnoticed in a crowd except for the gathered concentration in those dark and glinting eyes.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

"We can't allow you to get mixed up in this, Miss Luneska," he said quietly and politely.

Leni, with her whole world in ruins, put a smile on her lips. The smile had nothing whatever to do with what was occurring in her heart.

Her weaker inner self was reeling from the blow. Under the smile her brilliant white teeth were clenched. But she did not speak.
She sat entirely motionless, her hands clasped around her soft silken knees, her eyes misted.

"Can't you see, darling, that this is going to be a terrible scandal?"
asked Wingate fatuously. "If any of it rubs off on you it will be possibly ruinous. Absolutely! I wouldn't dream of letting you blight your career. You mean too much to the screen—far too much to your public!"

You fool, you fool, you fool! Leni wanted to cry aloud. Can't you understand, you idiot, that your talk of admiration and the screen and the public is nothing but stifling smoke rising from the funeral pyre of my dead ambitions? Do you think you can say anything with that loose, funny-looking mouth that could be important to me—or to Lucky Cavanaugh?

Yet, strength and a power was coming back to her. From where Heaven alone knew. It poured into the vacuum of her breast, gathered into a deep and expanding pool of vibrating energy that her heart
could take hold of and pump through every artery of her body.

"Don't worry about it, please, Ned," said the smiling shell of herself. "Everything will turn out all right."

"That's the spirit!" cried Wing-
gate.
Gerstenfeld suddenly was ignoring Leni. He picked up the blue covered contract from the table,
folded it and restored it to the envelope.

"Under the circumstances," he said aridly, "we may not be justified in offering this contract to Miss Luneska. I'll have to take it up with the company."

Leni felt she knew what he was thinking. The value of a motion picture star varied almost from day to day. A breath of scandal reacted directly upon the box office. No other business on earth was like this.

"It doesn't matter at all about the contract," she said to Gersten-feld. "I wasn't going to sign it anyway."

He did not even turn his head to look at her. The commanding power
of his eyes drew to a focus that
centered upon Ned Wingate.
"Get out!"

Wingate twisted his head with a
bird-like motion as though he had
not heard a word. "How's that?"
"Get out. I want to talk to Miss Luneska alone."

Wingate's long lips gave a twitch
of embarrassment. He was a vain
man and would have found it much
easier if Gerstenfeld had troubled
to be just a little polite. As it was,
he tried to pass it off as a bit of a
joke.

"Right! But if she talks you
into doubling the salary, I'd follow, don't blame me!"
His effort at lightness thudded to
the floor. With a howl to Leni and
a smile which meant to be humorous to Gerstenfeld, he took himself out of the room. At the door he paused.

"Just happened to think," he
said. "Hadn't I better see our press
department and ask them to soft-pedal everything?"

"Nothing of the kind," Gersten-
feld tossed negligently, over his shoulder. "Just keep your mouth shut."

As soon as Leni was alone in the room with Gerstenfeld a nameless tension increased perceptibly.
He took a step forward. Even before he spoke, the dull lights in his
eyes began to glow.

"Now we're alone," he said cool-
ly. "We'll cut out the foolishness."
"I'm sorry—there's really nothing
for us to talk about, Mr. Gersten-feld. Whatever has happened is
my own private affair. It does not
concern the studio in the least."

Gerstenfeld had unleashed something within himself that had changed a cold, mathematical machine into a relentless and pulsating

male animal whose newly-revealed personality swept around Leni and threatened every moment
to seize command of everything.

"If I saw you stumbling into a fatal accident, I'd snatch you back," Gerstenfeld said.

His attitude, the flash of his eyes,
the snap of his voice, bordered upon the contemptuous. His face had grown paler, his body appeared to have no temperature at all but Leni had the distinct impression that a white heat seethed inside him.

"You are a woman and therefore are not always in sound mind.
Your imagination runs away with you. For a woman like you, life is going to be miserable—unless you stay where you belong."

Leni made a forced effort to combat him. Deliberately she lifted her eyebrows, an effort at skepticism.

"Are you, by any chance, trying to save me from myself?" she inquired with a hauteur that shook a little.

"There's no one else to save you
from, except yourself," shot back Gerstenfeld. "You have beauty, talent—maybe genius, but no brain.
Of yourself you can do nothing. It requires the combined resources of the fourth largest industry to make a place in which you can function before you got into pictures, what kind of a life did you lead?"

Leni could tell from the tingling in her temples that some of the color was leaving her face. This man, she thought, has found out something about my past. It gave her a feeling of cold indecency and she wrapped herself in a quick lie.

"I lived quite comfortably at home," she said.

Gerstenfeld scorched her with his eyes and she turned her gaze away.

"Come—be honest! That's not true, is it?"

Without lifting her lids she answered him. "No."

"I knew it was a lie. How? I can not tell you—I just know. I sense those things. There was something —not pretty. You were out on your own—you backed the game without our vast machinery behind you. It was an awful business. There's only one place on earth for you—one island of safety. The pictures!"

Leni would have got up and left the room. The instinct to escape,
for flight, awakened and she rose
to her feet.

"What," she asked in a thin voice, "does all this get us?"

Gerstenfeld looked at her and put a hand on her shoulder. It was the first time he had ever touched her. They had never even shaken hands. He pushed her downward toward a chair, gently yet definitely.

"Sit there and listen," spoke Gerstenfeld. "If you walk out on me you'll walk straight back into your past. I'm telling you and I know."
But there was still light left in her. "Only fools know everything,"
she retorted.

"I know more about pictures and picture people than anybody else in the world," said Gerstenfeld.

He might have been stating that two and two make four, so lacking
was ecstacy in his voice.

Dreaded "Peritonitis"

In other instances delay in operation can be traced to fear of the knife. Many dread the operation, little realizing that delay to have it is often dangerous. I am confident that if everyone were familiar with this dreadful complication of appendicitis, known as "peritonitis," fewer persons would hesitate to accept surgical treatment.

Peritonitis occurs after the diseased appendix ruptures. When that happens the germs of the infection enter the abdominal cavity which is lined by a delicate membrane called the "peritoneum." This structure dips down between the different organs, covering and protecting them.
It serves as a wrapper and secretes
a substance which promotes movement of the organs without friction.

Unfortunately, when germs reach this delicate membrane a severe and possibly fatal inflammation occurs. It is a serious complication of appendicitis. In most instances, fortunately,

it can be prevented by the immediate removal of the acutely inflamed appendix. It is for this reason that all surgeons stress the importance and necessity of immediate operation.

Danger of Cathartics
As I have often said, a common cause of ruptured appendix and peritonitis is the unwise use of cathartics for the relief of abdominal pain. I am sure that fewer deaths would result from appendicitis if the dangers of strong cathartics were familiar to everyone.

If you are stricken with a pain in the abdomen, or a member of your family complains of stomachache, do not resort to home prescribing of a cathartic, but call your doctor. It is not a case of appendicitis, you will be assured of safe and speedy relief.
If the pain is due to appendicitis you will have saved yourself from possible complications.

I beg of you not to fear the operation. I assure you that in the hands of a competent surgeon it is a simple procedure and need cause no undue anxiety. No good can possibly come from delay in permitting removal of the diseased appendix.

Delay of Operation Is Danger in Appendicitis

Dr. Copeland Tells of This Disease and Its Serious Complication, "Peritonitis"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

A RECENT newspaper item stated that in the United States the deaths from appendicitis average "one every twenty-nine minutes." This is an alarming and a true statement.

Dr. Copeland

There can be no doubt the danger of this disease cannot be overemphasized. Despite the increased skill of modern surgery, appendicitis continues to take its toll of children and young persons.

A careful analysis and survey of cases shows that the menace of appendicitis lies, not in the operation, but in the delay of the operation. Too often appendicitis is mistaken for a stomachache or another minor abdominal complaint.
The sufferer seeks relief by taking castor oil or some other drastic catharctic. Serious trouble follows.

Roosevelt Willing to Put U. S. Into Meat and Milk Business

WASHINGTON — Never since March 4 has there been any doubt that Roosevelt was determined to pursue a definitely Liberal course in moulding the New Deal. How far left he was willing to go, however, is disclosed only now. Recently he passed the word to his agricultural aides that he is willing, even anxious to have the government go into the business of meat packing and milk distribution.

Roosevelt does not plan this for the entire country—at least not immediately. He plans to take one or two milk distributing areas where the government can sell milk, operate one or two packing houses and prove to industry what Washington can do. He thinks this will be a salutary lesson to milk racketeers and meat packers.

If they don't take the hint, he is ready to go much further.

So profuse and revolutionary are the number of executive orders issued under the New Deal that Madame Perkins has proposed an Official Gazette. This is a government newspaper published by most countries in which are printed all government decrees and regulations.

So many important orders have come out of the White House in recent months that one department finds itself acting against another department solely because of the fact that it has had no chance to become acquainted with the latest orders.

5,000 Birthday Balls to Honor President January 30

And to Help Finance Fight on Infantile Paralysis

GETTING READY FOR THE BIGGEST BIRTHDAY PARTY IN AMERICAN HISTORY

Every community in the nation will honor President Roosevelt when he becomes 52 years old on Tuesday, Jan. 30, by giving a local ball to help endow an extension of the nation-wide work of the Warm Springs Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in which the President is so deeply interested. Upper left, the President and his mother, Mrs. James A. Roosevelt, who bought the first box sold for the New York ball in the Waldorf-Astoria, upper center, Colonel Henry L. Doherty, chairman of the committee of leaders arranging the observance of the President's anniversary; upper right, the official poster contributed to the movement by the famous artist, Howard Chandler Christy; lower picture, child patients at Warm Springs sharpening up knives and appetites for the largest observance of the President's birthday ever held at that health center. The cake, weighing 344 pounds and said to be the largest birthday cake ever made, was presented to the children for their party by Chairman Doherty.

Carter Glass... The peppery little Virginian fussed and fumed against the plan to impound all gold in Federal Reserve banks, bluntly told the President it was "confiscation."

"The President laughed," good-naturedly. "Oh, not quite as bad as that Carter," he said. "We exempt $250 gold pieces. That will enable our grandfathers to give them to our grandchildren every Christmas."

Glass snorted. "I'm doing better than that," he snapped. "I'm giving them $10 gold pieces for their birthdays."

The President joined in the general laughter... FERA (Federal Emergency Relief Administration) is actually the name of a beautiful New York debutante, Theodora Fera. This was discovered when some wit pinned on the wall of the FERA office a picture of the young lady basking at Miami Beach.

One of the most interesting spectacles of the United States Supreme Court is when Justice Owen J. Roberts, youngest member of the tribunal, delivers an opinion.

Never looking at his manuscript, he speaks—as if extemporaneously—in a loud, clear, resonant voice, reminiscent of the days when as a brilliant prosecutor he conducted the government's case in the oil scandals.

CWA authorities have taken under consideration a plan proposed by Ernest H. Lindley, Chancellor of the University of Kansas, for government aid to college students and those eligible for college.

Dr. Lindley proposes that the CWA spend around $2,000,000 a month during the school period, to be divided into $15 to $20 monthly wages for campus work. This would enable around 100,000 students to obtain a college education, the cost for each one being one-sixth of what it costs to maintain one CCC member per month.

British Dismayed British diplomats were dismayed, almost horrified at the indignity Roosevelt showed in putting across his devaluation of the dollar. With one stroke, he removed British hopes of stabilizing the pound at a low figure as against the dollar.

Roosevelt did this by creating a stabilization fund of from the $20,000,000... at his disposal... that it should be... able for the British to... dollar up or down... White, former assistant... of state in charge of Latin... Affairs, has accepted... with the International... and Telegraph... has concessions in many... Latin American countries... relations once came under... in the State Department... riner S. Eccles, new assistant... retary of the Treasury, looks like a good appointment. He is a big banker from Utah, but one who fits in with the New Deal... logy that bankers should not... the show and that sooner or later the government may have to take over the entire banking system. Eccles is a Mormon, a hotel operator, coal miner, beet sugar executive, railroad director, banker and former lumberman.

One of the big government scandals due for an airing soon is the leasing of government wharves to private shipping companies.

They were leases made by the Army and the Shipping Board under the Old Deal and are now being investigated by the Shipping Board under the New Deal.

Governor Bilbo of Mississippi apparently has regained so much prestige since he became chief news paper clipper for the AAA that he is telling friends that he will run for Governor of Mississippi next campaign.

Roosevelt expects to abandon his policy of quotas for wine and liquor at the end of the trial period. A few trade concessions have been gained in general but the plan has not worked out well. Roosevelt hopes to gain even more trade preference by negotiating a sliding scale of duties with lower rates to countries which give preference to American trade.

Meanwhile reciprocity treaties with most countries are being held up until Roosevelt gets tariff negotiating powers from Congress.

TO LOSE FAT

Miss M. Kainer of Brandon, N. Y. writes: "Have used Kruschen for past 4 weeks and have not only lost pounds but feel like a new person. Even for people who are not really obese, Kruschen is wonderful. It cleans the system, builds up the body, and should be used for two or three things but only Kruschen counts for purpose." (May 12, 1933.)

To lose fat, Kruschen and Epsom salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't eat anything butting the food—costs but a trifle—get Kruschen from any drugstore in America. It is fully satisfied after the first money back.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST TO BE HELD APRIL 21

FIVE SCOUTS TO FILL CITY'S PUBLIC OFFICES ON FEB. 3

Temperance

Yesterday being the day set apart by the laws of Ohio for temperance programs in all the schools of the state, the Director of Education, B. O. Skinner, sent a letter to all schools containing a suggestive program. Some of the following ideas are found in that letter.

Invitably children grow up and become the voters of the nation, and when they reach maturity their attitudes toward public questions, which they have acquired in childhood, continue to have force, and frequently greater force because of early learning.

No one can deny that the immoderate use of alcohol is a physiological and social evil of tragic magnitude. The distribution of alcoholic beverages must, therefore, be controlled, and the liquor interests will be placed in the repulsive position of supporting a cause which is inherently antisocial if allowed free rein. Even if they are sincerely in favor of temperance and civic control, they will be, as in the past, a most unpopular position.

As a result of the repeal of the 18th Amendment we may expect to see the quest of liquor control become one of the most pressing of our social problems. This being the situation the schools have a definite responsibility. According to laws of the state it becomes the duty of the high school to present the problem to the students of today who will be the citizens of tomorrow.

Wisdom comes through education, and education must be based upon a clear-eyed and open-minded consideration of all the facts that bear upon a question. The schools are not the avenues of propaganda. There is the business of collecting all the facts and teaching the children how to think their way through to valid conclusions. In this situation as in all others, the teacher is less concerned with what his pupils think than in how straight they think.

A new brand of football was introduced in Miss Hitler's fifth period girls' business arithmetic class, the class room being the gridiron.

The appointment of fire chief is still to be made.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

A COUPLE of fellers were arguing in a hotel about some word or other that neither one seemed to know the meaning of, so that nature ally led to a general discussion of words in general.

One of these here guys finally got pretty sarcastic like and said to the other, "You're so darn smart, you are, why I bet you don't even know who wrote the dictionary."

"Don't I though," said the other one, "well, I just bet you that I do."

"All right then, you're on. Tell me who was it that wrote the dictionary?"

"Why you poor sap, it was Dan'l Webster," was the reply.

"Dan'l Webster, nothing," said the wise Alec, "it was Noah."

"Noah, hell," said the other, "Noah built the Ark."

Fascism Gains Ground in Great Britain

OWEN O'DUFFY MOSLEY ADDRESSES FOLLOWERS IN TRAFALGAR SQUARE

Starting as a tiny stream with Benito Mussolini in 1914, Fascism has assumed the proportions of a mountain torrent that has swept through Europe under various names and vari-colored shirts. England, the last stronghold of conservatism is seen on the brink of succumbing to the new gospel with such a hide-bound member of the Old Guard as Viscount Rothermere, Great Britain's press emperor, advocating support of Sir Oswald Mosley, Black Shirt leader. Across the channel in Ireland, General Owen O'Duffy, leader of the Blue Shirts, Irish brand of Fascism, is making rapid strides since the ban placed on the organization by President E. A. Walsh was declared unconstitutional by the Free State Supreme Court. Observers predict that the next great political swing in Great Britain will be towards Fascism, Lord Rothermere's statement that it is the only way to forestall Communism being regarded as a sermon from the mount.
